The Lemonade Stand

Grade 3 reading comprehension · Story · 11 points · About 15 minutes

On Saturday morning, Tariq and his little sister Nia set up a lemonade stand in front of their house. They had a card table, a big pitcher of lemonade, and a stack of paper cups. Nia painted a sign in bright yellow letters: LEMONADE, 50 CENTS.

“We are going to give all the money to the animal shelter,” said Tariq. “Our goal is twenty dollars.”

For a long time, nobody came. The sun was hot, and the ice in the pitcher began to melt. Nia sighed and rested her chin on her hands. “Maybe nobody is thirsty,” she said.

Then Tariq had an idea. He grabbed a marker and added a second line to the sign: HELP THE SHELTER DOGS! Almost right away, Mrs. Garcia stopped her bike. “That is a wonderful idea,” she said. She bought two cups and dropped a whole dollar into the jar.

Soon, more people came. A man walking his poodle bought a cup. Two girls from the park bought one to share. By lunchtime, the pitcher was empty, and the jar was full of coins and bills.

Tariq and Nia counted every cent. They had made twenty-three dollars and fifty cents! Nia did a happy dance right there on the sidewalk.
